

IRMAA and Medicare

Why do some people pay more for their Medicare benefits?

Since 2011, Medicare has enforced the Income Related Monthly Adjustment Amount (IRMAA), that charges high income earners more for their Medicare Parts B and D. These payments are designed to address the fiscal challenges the Medicare program faces.

How much do I pay?

IRMAA costs are calculated annually, and your payment will be based on your Modified Adjusted Gross Income (MAGI) from two years prior. See chart below for your payment.

Can I appeal my IRMAA payments?

Yes. If you've had an income reducing life event such as retirement, reduction of work hours or divorce, you can request a redetermination using Form SSA-44.

2024 IRMAA (Income Related Monthly Adjustment Amount) Standard Part B Premium - $174.70/month

	MODIFIED AGI (2022)	PART B BASE + IRMAA	PART B TOTAL	PART D SURCHARGE
Single Married	$103,000 or less $206,000 or less	$174.70 + 0.00	= $174.70	$0.00
Single Married	$103,001-$129,000 $206,001-$258,000	$174.70 +$69.90	= $244.60	$12.90
Single Married	$129,001-$161,000 $258,001-$322,000	$174.70 +$174.70	= $349.40	$33.30
Single Married	$161,001-$193,000 $322,001-$386,000	$174.70 +$279.50	= $454.20	$53.80
Single Married	$193,001 - $500,000 $386,001 - $750,000	$174.70 +$384.30	= $559.00	$74.20
Single Married	$500,001 or more $750,001 or more	$174.70 +$419.30	= $594.00	$81.00